Anti CRT laws are part of a broader platform to advance anti democracy and voter efforts, reproductive health, massive corporate tax cuts, tax cuts for the wealthy- all things that “prioritize and highlight and affirm economic and social and cultural powers of mostly white male homeowners.” - National Nonprofit Worker
“Lots of philanthropy fails to have a systems analysis. You can’t do systems change work if you don’t address racism. However, you also have to know what to do with that analysis.” – Foundation staff
Methodology & Data
Methodology and Data

- Over 30 stakeholder interviews
- Four virtual and in person stakeholder convenings
- Internet research [including keyword searches, examination of state government websites and organizational charts]
- Planning sessions to inform our mapping, analysis and recommendations
- Literature review
Analysis
Practitioner and Partner Convenings

Practitioners value having a safe space to be in community, be validated, share learnings, air feelings, and ask questions.

- Shared language and understanding about why this work is important
- Internal infrastructure for belonging and government transformation
- Networked infrastructure for sustained capacity
Internet Research Questions

- What state equity offices exist and where are they positioned (what department)?
- Where are other equity efforts happening in state governments (e.g., services for differently abled people, LGBTQIAA-focused, rural health, veteran services)?
- Which states are using travel bans as an equity tool (banning travel of state staff to states that have passed laws which have negative impacts on racial equity)?
- What are state responses since 2020 to either support or mitigate equity efforts? This question is an expansion of research conducted in 2022.
State Travel Bans & Other Tools States Use to achieve Equity

“It’s hard to be in a system that is perpetuating the status quo.” State Government Worker
State Travel Bans

Since 2015, a number of cities and states have instituted travel bans to a number of states as a result of that state passing a regressive social inequity bill:

- In 2015, Indiana passed a restrictive religious freedom bill.
- In 2016, North Carolina passed an anti trans bathroom bill.
- In 2016, Mississippi passed an anti trans bathroom bill.
- California is the state with the most restrictions at 23. Otherwise, most places currently do not travel to Mississippi.
States with Students on School Boards:
- CT, DE, HI, IA, KY, ME, MS, MT, NC, NJ, NY, OR, PA, VA
  TOTAL: 14

States with Students on School Boards and voting power:
- CA, MA, MD, TN, VT, WA
  TOTAL: 6

Judicial Statements on Racial Equity:
- AK, CA, CT, GA, HI, IL, IN, KY, LA, MA, MD, ME, NC, NE, NJ, NY, OH, OR, RI, TN, TX, UT, VA, WA
  TOTAL: 24
Pre-Emption

Learning how permissive states are using this tool

California:
- Gov, AG & State Superintendent of Public Instruction guidance re: book bans
- Gov & AG response to Temecula SB dropping Social Studies curriculum

New Jersey:
- Dept of Law & Public Safety and the DOE joint statement promoting the use of anti bias initiatives and curricula.
- And, warned schools and districts trying to restrict classroom discussion and training in anti racism
Tracking Policy

“People may not say it directly, but some government staff do work behind the scenes to put up barriers to racial equity work under the auspices of legality, communications guidelines, etc.” - State Government Worker

Findings from Mini Literature Review

“Race Equity is part of our work, but we frame it as more of health equity; to change it to a more of a racial equity frame feels like a lot of work or coordination needed when people aren’t even bought into health equity yet.” - State Nonprofit Worker
Health and Racial Equity

Example organizations with increased focus on health and racial equity:

- APHA
- ASTHO
- Advancing Health Equity
- Network for Public Health Law
  - examined legislative trends in health and race equity in 2021-2022:
Housing and Racial Equity

There’s a growing movement among housing nonprofits / collaboratives that are both state and national to tie race to housing in narrative and programming.

- Community Change, PolicyLink, and Race Forward “Housing Justice Narrative”
- Enterprise Community Partners
- Housing Partnership Network
- Funders for Housing and Opportunity (RWJF participates)

● Recommendations for State HFAs:
  ○ Advocate for Affordable Housing
  ○ Prioritize Responsive Developers
  ○ Create Criteria for Community Revitalization Plan
  ○ Develop Outreach & Marketing to Most In Need
  ○ Use Qualified Allocation Plan
  ○ Prevent Increased Segregation
Opposition to Housing Equity Work

- Chris Rufo (a response to Housing First programs):
  - “In order to reduce homelessness, policymakers at all levels must understand that chronic and long-term homelessness is not primarily a housing problem - it is a human problem... In other words, these are not simply people who lack shelter; the majority are suffering from profound human pathologies.”

- Attack on DEI in public universities
Themes from Key Informant Interviews
“It’s not that we don’t know what does and doesn’t work. It boils down to decision making of people in power and authority. We cannot change a community without buy-in of decision makers.”
– State Government Worker
1. State environments are shifting to become either more permissive OR more hostile.
2. Politics drives policy and policy drives government practice.
3. There is a lot of work to do/currently happening, BUT there’s a lack of coordination, dedicated resources, and authentic action from leadership.
4. Permissive environments and systemic change are needed to make an equity approach part of the job no matter the political context.
5. Philanthropy has particular lanes of influence and levers to use in the work to transform state governments.
1. State Environments

State environments are shifting to become either more permissive or more hostile.

- States with permissive environments are doubling down on commitments to racial equity.
- Government workers in hostile environments worry about job loss or retaliation.
- Urban and rural communities are divided about advancing racial equity.
- Internal pushback is real and happens in multiple ways.
Politics drives policy and policy drives government practice.

a. When civic engagement activities are supported, government structures are more likely to change to be responsive to community needs.
b. Legislatures are more likely to hear needs of government entities when there is interagency collaboration.
c. Inside-Outside strategies are key. Outside advocates are more likely to see changes when working in partnership with practitioners organizing inside government.
d. Impediments to equity work are baked into government practice through policy.
e. Unions may play an important role in supporting workers while also navigating the intersections of politics, policy, and practice.
3. Coordination, Resources, Leadership

There is a lot of work to do/currently happening, BUT there’s a lack of coordination, dedicated resources, and authentic action from leadership.

a. State agencies lack a good systemic or structural analysis of root causes.
b. Government leadership is often focused on quick and easy wins and not on deepening their understanding of and action on systems level changes that are needed.
c. The work is difficult to sustain due to leadership turnover, churn of positions, too few staff with advancing racial equity as a defined duty in their role, and not enough resources dedicated to making long-term structural change.
d. There are many different initiatives happening fast but there is a dearth of information-sharing, interagency coordination, or enterprise-wide support.
e. There are several communities of practice for practitioners, though the difference between the networks is not always clear, nor is how they may overlap or relate.
4. Resource Needs

Permissive environments and systemic change are needed to make an equity approach part of the job no matter the political context. Specifically, states need:

a. Invested and knowledgeable leadership that understand the actions necessary to advance systemic change.

b. More funding and staff capacity dedicated to equity. In addition to FTEs, practitioners need capacity building opportunities and access to examples of equity work happening in similar contexts.

c. Legal support and counsel with a background in equity and civil rights.

d. Narrative and communications support around the role of state government in advancing equity, race conscious practice, nuances for communicating about racial equity in hostile environments, and communications capacity.
5. Role of Philanthropy

Philanthropy has particular lanes of influence and levers to use in the work to transform state governments.

a. Philanthropy can weave a strategy in collaboration with partners and government agencies to ensure philanthropic levers are part of movements for structural change.

b. Philanthropy can form funder collaboratives and pool resources to equip grantees with the level of investments that their opponents have.

c. Philanthropy can support civic participation beyond voting (e.g. census, redistricting) and can take a clearer stance on legislative bills.

d. Philanthropy can model how to advance broader structural change by continuing to explore how it functions, including addressing the scarcity mindset, short cycles, lack of diversity in leadership and on boards, and hesitation to approve community solutions.
“I look forward to seeing whatever comes out of this so we can say ‘see we’re not the only ones, other people need these things too!’” State Government Worker

Statewide Equity Offices

- Difficult to ascertain and decipher where the equity office sits. Often, it took a lot of digging to find the office/personnel.

Statewide Equity Offices (13):
- AL: Governor's Office of Minority Affairs
- CA: State Chief Equity Officer, Gov Ops Agency
- CO: Statewide Equity Office, Department of Personnel and Administration
- DE: Director of Statewide Equity Initiatives, Office of the Governor
- IL: Office of Equity/Chief Equity Officer, Office of the Governor
- MI: Office of Global Michigan, Director, Executive Office of the Governor
- NJ: Office of Equity, Governor's Office
- NY: Chief Diversity Officer, Office of the Governor/Lieutenant Governor
- UT: Senior Advisor on Equity and Opportunity, Governor's Office
- VA: Chief Diversity, Opportunity & Inclusion Officer, Governor's Office
- VT: Office of Racial Equity, Agency of Administration
- WA: Office of Equity, Governor's Office
- WI: State Equity and Inclusion Officer, Department of Administration
Most Common Offices / Commissions / Councils:
- Health,
- EDI / Equity,
- Disability,
- Special Education,
- Veterans,
- American Indian / Alaska Native,
- Workforce Development,
- Aging,
- Immigration / Immigrants / Migrants
- Women

Commissions / Councils / Advisory Committees / Committees / Task Forces / Boards
- Most of the government structures for equity were invested in commissions / councils and not offices with fuller resources and capacity
“It’s people in the government understanding the role they play, and actively owning and being brave leaders for racial equity that is going to transform government. It’s in the implementation— things can be changed from department/agency level.” – State Government Worker

Recommendations
Recommendations for State Strategy – Long Term Outcomes

- The systems: State government institutions will be more responsive to the communities they serve, while effectively stewarding their intermediary role between the federal and local levels of government.

- The infrastructure: A well-coordinated and proactive foundation will ensure alignment across the government-support field, and garner the resources of multiple national and state organizations and networks to support strategy, capacity building, communications, and resources for health and racial equity in state government.

- The people: A national movement of state government racial equity practitioners, equipped with tools, skill-building opportunities, and a supportive community to bolster their leadership as they transform systems and advance health and racial equity in their own institutions.
Recommendations for State Strategy

Activities of a national states strategy:

1. Expand infrastructure to effectively coordinate partner organizations and sustain the National States Strategy
2. Further develop tools and resources for transforming state government
3. Build community and capacity among state practitioners advancing equity across the nation
1. Infrastructure Recommendations

Expand infrastructure to effectively coordinate partner organizations and sustain the National States Strategy

a. Steering Committee
b. Movement building strategy
c. Resources to support partner networks and organizations
d. Resources for coordination of organizations and networks providing support to states
e. Powermap of key levers inside and outside of state governments
f. Research topical areas as needed
g. Evaluation of the impact of the strategies to continue to hone and cultivate the national strategy as needed (tracking impact and shifting strategies where a different outcome is desired)
2. Tools and Resources Recommendations

Further develop tools and resources for transforming state government

a. Frameworks and racial equity tools for implementation of racial equity approaches, including case studies and examples
b. Legal resources to address challenges to the work
c. Alignment among existing narratives and effective messaging strategies for state government, including plain language that supports state practitioners in making the case for the role of state government
3. Capacity Building Recommendations

Build community and capacity among state practitioners advancing equity across the nation

a. Broad reach for validation, cover, care, and inspiration/energization
b. Segmentation for impactful peer-to-peer learning (by region, by enterprise-wide or agency-level focus, by experience, by political context)
c. Explore connections between legislative and executive branches to advance racial equity
d. Cultivate spaces for whole-of-government connection and coordination
e. Create learning opportunities such as sharing in-depth case studies showing how state governments are:
   ○ Supporting and caring for state practitioners working to transform government ○ Building infrastructure to advance and sustain racial equity “Change must happen simultaneously from the top down, the bottom up, and the middle out.” – Advancing Health Equity
